SERIES INFORMATION

The Survey of Living Conditions and Household Budgets 2016 is the third in a series of LSMS type HBS surveys which has been done. The first of this series was done in 1997 and the second was done in 2005/06.

ABSTRACT

The SLCHBS 2016 is a comprehensive survey which combines a survey of living conditions with a survey of household income and expenditure. It is a rich source of socio-economic information on the household population and is often regarded as an essential source of data for the determination of social needs and establishment of targets for development planning. This survey has three main objectives; firstly, it is designed to collect information from the country's households and families on their buying habits (expenditures), income and other characteristics. Secondly, the survey allows data users to relate the expenditures and income of consumers to the characteristics of those same consumers. Thirdly, this survey provides valuable data for an assessment of the impact of socio-economic policies on the conditions and levels of living of households. In addition, information on the poor, their characteristics, expenditure patterns when compared to other groups in the society.

KIND OF DATA

Sample survey data [ssd]

UNIT OF ANALYSIS

The survey of Living Conditions and Household Budgets 2016 questionnaire has the following units of analysis

- Individuals
- Households
- Expenditure

Version

VERSION DESCRIPTION

- v1.0: Basic raw data, obtained from tablet
- v1.1: Basic raw data, obtained from tablet and processed with a STATA program to detect errors not captured with consistency check in the tablet application, main issue was the capture of data on food consumed by sampled household who did not purchase food items in the last week.
- v1.2: Data from v1.1 updated to produce first version of the 2016 household expenditure shares for updating the Consumer Price Index

Sampling

SAMPLING PROCEDURE

The sample design for the SLC-HBS was a two-stage probability design, based on the same principles as the Labour Force Survey (LFS) samples drawn from the Labour Force Survey Sample Frame. An independent sample was drawn, but with minor constraints to avoid visiting households in the most recent LFS samples.

The LFS sample size was allocated proportionally to the size of each stratum, using number of households as MOS (Measure of Size). However, for the SLC-HBS, the sample allocation was modified to increase the overall sample size, and to give greater relative representation to the smaller strata. This was achieved in an ad hoc way by shortening the sampling intervals. First a small overall increase in the sample size was achieved by multiplying all the sampling intervals by .95. Next, an additional adjustment was made by multiplying the interval by .9 (in Castries Urban, Castries Rural and Gros Islet), by .7 (Vieux Fort, Micoud and Dennerly) or by .5 (Anse-La-Raye/Canaries, Soufriere, Choiseul and Laborie).

The desired sample design is a stratified, two-stage probability design. Full details of the theory and techniques for this type of design are presented in the classic texts of "Cochran, W. G. (1977) Sampling Techniques" and "Kish, L. (1965) Survey Sampling".

The first, explicit level of stratification is geographic and is based on the country's administrative structure. There are 12 Districts, but for survey purposes two (the core and the suburban parts of Castries, the capital), are combined into a single stratum called Castries Urban, while two small districts, Anse-La-Raye and Canaries, are also combined into one stratum, making 10 strata in all. They vary quite widely in population, and this is reflected in the number of Census Enumeration Districts (EDs), ranging from 127 in Castries Rural to only 18 in Laborie. This fact influences the LFS and SLCHB sample allocations, but in different ways as will be seen in the corresponding sections of this report.

A second, implicit stratification is achieved by sorting the EDs of a stratum according to Census information on occupational groups. In the four "urban" strata (including Castries Rural), the sort is done according to the percentage of economically active persons in the category "Managers, Professionals and Sub-professionals", while in the rural areas the sorting criterion was the percentage of workers in agriculture. The 10 true strata, along with their implicit stratification due to sorting, are referred to in the working paper "St. Catherine, E. (circa 2002) Methodological Design of the St. Lucia Sample Frame to Assist with the Conduct of Surveys of Living Conditions and other Multipurpose Surveys" as Domains of Study. 1504 households were selected for the sample.

DEVIATIONS FROM THE SAMPLE DESIGN

The sample design for the SLC-HBS was a two-stage probability design, based on the same principles as the Labour Force Survey (LFS) samples drawn from the Labour Force Survey Sample Frame. An independent sample was drawn, but with minor constraints to avoid visiting households in the most recent LFS samples.

The LFS sample size was allocated proportionally to the size of each stratum, using number of households as MOS (Measure of Size). However, for the SLC-HBS, the sample allocation was modified to increase the overall sample size, and to give greater relative representation to the smaller strata. This was achieved in an ad hoc way by shortening the sampling intervals. First a small overall increase in the sample size was achieved by multiplying all the sampling intervals by .95. Next, an additional adjustment was made by multiplying the interval by .9 (in Castries Urban, Castries Rural and Gros Islet), by .7 (Vieux Fort, Micoud and Dennery) or by .5 (Anse-La-Raye/Canaries, Soufriere, Choiseul and Laborie).

RESPONSE RATE

The overall response rate is 73% using the sample frame. The sample frame is under estimating the response rate by about 7% since it includes some closed and some vacant dwellings. Therefore the overall response rate is about 80%. Response Rates by District is as follows:

- Castries Urban: 65%
- Castries Rural: 71%
- Anse La Raye: 75%
- Soufriere: 78%
- Choiseul: 82%
- Laborie: 83%
- VieuxFort: 73%
- Micoud: 75%
- Dennery: 73%
- Gros Islet: 69%

WEIGHTING

Sample weights were calculated for each of the data files.

Sample weights for the household data were computed as the inverse of the probability of selection of the household, computed at the sampling domain level (for each district). The household weights were adjusted for non-response at the primary sampling unit (PSU) level (Enumeration Districts/ED approximately) and were then normalized by a constant factor so that the total weighted number of households at the PSU/ED equals the total unweighted number of households. A district-level expansion factor was then applied to each PSU to raise the dataset to the level of the population.

In the data file the weight name is included as WT.

DATA COLLECTION MODE

Computer Assisted Personal Interview [capi]

SUPERVISION

The role of the supervisor was to coordinate field data collection activities, including management of field teams, supplies and equipment, finances, enumeration maps and listings. Additionally, the field supervisor assigned the work to the interviewers, spot checked the interviews, maintained field control documents.

The field supervisor was responsible for reviewing each completed questionnaire, checking for missed questions, skip errors, fields incorrectly completed, and checking for inconsistencies in the data. The field supervisor also observed interviews and conducted review sessions with interviewers.

DATA COLLECTION NOTES

The preliminary test and pilots for the survey were conducted, four of these exercises were carried out to ensure that the implementation of the tablet for this survey was smooth and included 10 interviewees. Four of these persons would then become supervisors of the main survey.

Each interviewing team was made up of 4-6 interviewees. A total of 20 interviewers, 4 supervisors and 1 data support person were employed. The data collection took place over a period of approximately 10 months from November 2015 to September 2016. The interviews were conducted daily during the field work period, although the interview teams were allowed to take free days per week.

Interviews averaged 60 minutes for the home questionnaire, 30 minutes for a person's questionnaire.

The general coordinator of the survey was Mr. Edwin St Catherine, Director of Statistics.

Questionnaires

QUESTIONNAIRES

The questionnaires were administered to each household using the tablet computer on which the questionnaire is loaded. The questionnaire for the SLC-HBS 2016 is in English and it is provided as an external resource.

Data Processing

DATA EDITING

Data editing took place at a number of stages throughout the processing, including:

- Office editing and coding mostly by the supervisors when the electronic questionnaires were uploaded to the office cloud
- Structure checking and completeness was also done by the supervisors in addition to their field related checking duties.
- The tablet questionnaire application also used a larger number of consistency and structural edits which assisted a great deal with the data cleaning during the interview by the enumerators.
- Secondary editing was done by exporting the data to STATA and checking especially the completeness of the data collected on food consumed in addition to assigning calories to the food consumed.
- Structural checking of STATA data files

CONFIDENTIALITY

The success of the survey depends on full public cooperation. "The Central Statistical Office of Saint Lucia and its staff are bound by law to ensure confidentiality of information collected under the Statistics Act, Chapter 17:12, Vol. 19 of 2001." One way to encourage cooperation is to maintain the confidentiality of the survey. The Central Statistics Office re-assures the public that this is being done. Copies of the Statistics Act are available from the Central Statistics Office. The Central Statistics Office administered Oath of Secrecy which guarantees the public that the information they give will not be revealed to anyone outside the Central Statistics Office. Confidentiality covers all information obtained during duties, including anything that is told or observe.
